SHAWN M. RODDA JOINS SNELL & WILMER'S DENVER OFFICE

DENVER (August 1, 2011) - Snell & Wilmer, one of Denver's largest full-service business law firms, is pleased to announce that Shawn M. Rodda has joined the Denver office as counsel in the firm's transactional and commercial litigation groups.

Rodda's background includes a unique combination of experiences with project development and construction disputes. She has been involved with a variety of construction projects including urban transit systems, hospitals, and renewable energy facilities, among others. She has represented owners, general contractors and subcontractors in a variety of construction-related disputes, handling matters in state and local courts, mediations and arbitrations.

Rodda joins the firm's Infrastructure Development & Project Finance team where her skills will support that team's efforts to support clients involved in innovative infrastructure projects and delivery systems, including public private partnerships, throughout the United States and internationally.

"Recognizing the specialized needs in large infrastructure projects, the firm is pleased to add Shawn Rodda to the team. Shawn brings a unique combination of skills in the transactional and construction dispute fields and will help advance our ability to service clients involved in large infrastructure development projects," said Tim O'Neill, Managing Partner of Snell & Wilmer's Denver office.

Rodda earned her J.D., summa cum laude, from Tulane Law School in 1999. She was associate editor of the Tulane Law Review. She has also served as an adjunct professor at the University of Denver Sturm College of Law.
